

Throughout my academic journey I have face lot of hardships, these hardships made me a person that I am today. These hardships teach me a lot of things such as good and bad times, Failure and success are the part of life we need to embrace them with strong heart and learn from them.

In my whole academic journey until now I faced many challenges The biggest challenge that I have face is after my fathers death, I have family responsibilities and also my academic expenses.

After I cleared my 10th stander exams I got admission in collage for further studies at that time I have to manage my own expenses and also support family, For managing my expenses I worked on a food stall after my collage. I achieve PEEF scholarship in collage on performance and need. I covered my all expenses from there and work hard in my studies and I get the reward of my hard work I pass the exam and got admission in University.

For my undergraduate studies I choose BBA with a specialization in finance because I have interest in both business and finance. During my degree I achieve merit scholarship in every semester on my high performance and achieve gold medal at the end of my degree for my highest academic achievement.

In Conclusion, Throughout my journey I learn many skills such as how to communicate with other, team management, time management, multitasking and many more that I believe are my assets that I achieve over time that help me In future and also help in my studies at Northeastern University (D'Amore-McKim School of Business) and also help in accomplishing my future goal.
